Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Procedure Committee

E-petitions Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Procedure Committee, 2008 This report follows on from the Committee's report of May 2007, HC 513, session 2006-07 (ISBN 9780215034168). Both in that report and the Government's reply to it, support was expressed in principle for an e-petitioning system for the House of Commons. Historically it has always been seen as the right of every commoner to prepare and present petitions to the House of Commons in case of grievance and the House to receive and respond to them. The suggested scheme retains the direct involvement of constituency Members of Parliament in the petition procedure. It is proposed that: E-petitions are submitted via the Parliamentary website; if they comply with the House's rules, the petitioner's constituency MP will be asked to act as facilitator; the e-petition is then posted on the website for a set period - allowing others to add their name if they wish; at the end of the period, it is closed; it is then presented to the House; petitioners and signatories may opt in to receive updates; e-petitions will be printed in Hansard and sent to select committees and may be considered by them; the Government will normally be expected to reply within 2 months; on three occasions each year; certain e-petitions will be debated by the House of Commons in Westminster Hall. The Committee acknowledges that setting up an e-petitions scheme is not without risks. Its successful implementation will require new ways of working and novel forms of governance. However, e-petitioning is also seen as having the potential to open up proceedings and make a major contribution to the House's strategic objective to 'make itself more accessible, to make it easier for people to understand the work of the Parliament and do more to communicate its activity to the general public'

Was ist E-Partizipation und welche Beteiligungsformen der E-Partizipation sind gegeben? Submission to the Standing Committee on the Legislative Assembly : E-Petitions ,2015 Earlier today the Commissioner appeared before the Standing Committee on the Legislative Assembly to provide advice on the integration of e-petitions into the Assembly's existing petition procedures. His submission discusses the benefits of e-petitions, including how they can support open and transparent government. It also addresses the privacy implications of e-petitions and what the Legislative Assembly can do to protect individuals' personal information. The Commissioner supports the efforts of the Standing Committee on the Legislative Assembly and has offered the IPC's assistance in the development of a privacy-protective e-petition program.-- Commissioner's website.

HC 235 - E-petitions: a collaborative system Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Procedure,2014 The public will be able to petition the House of Commons electronically for the first time, under proposals published by the House of Commons Procedure Committee today. The system the Committee puts forward is based on the existing Government e-petition site, redesigned and rebranded to show that it is jointly run between the House of Commons and the Government. Crucially, it will be backed by the establishment of a new Petitions Committee, which will be able to hear petitioners' concerns and scrutinise the Government's response. The Petitions Committee will consider both e-petitions and paper petitions presented under the existing procedures. When it identifies a petition meriting further action, it will be able to: correspond with petitioners on their petition; call petitioners for oral evidence; refer a petition to the relevant select committee; seek further information from the Government, orally or in writing, on the subject of a petition; and put forward petitions for debate in the House

Elektronische Petitionssysteme Ulrich Riehm,Knud Böhle,Ralf Lindner,2013 Das vom Deutschen Bundestag 2005 eingeführte E-Petitionssystem, das u.a. die Veröffentlichung sowie die Mitzeichnung und Diskussion von Petitionen ermöglicht, war Gegenstand umfangreicher empirischer Untersuchungen. Die Darstellung ihrer Ergebnisse in diesem Buch erlaubt ein differenziertes Bild der Stärken und Schwächen des derzeitigen Systems. Einerseits sind das Nutzungsinteresse und die Nutzungszahlen hoch sowie die Medienresonanz beträchtlich. Andererseits wird die Unzufriedenheit mit niedrigen Zulassungsquoten für Öffentliche Petitionen deutlich artikuliert, um nur eines der Probleme des bestehenden Systems zu nennen. Die Sicht auf das deutsche Petitionswesen wird ergänzt um eine Länderstudie zum Petitionswesen in Großbritannien. Das schottische E-Petitionssystem nahm früh eine Pionierrolle weltweit ein, während auf der nationalen Ebene Großbritanniens das Petitionswesen auf der parlamentarischen Ebene eher schwach ausgeprägt ist, wohingegen die Exekutive sich mit interessanten Petitionsplattformen profilieren konnte. Abgerundet wird der Band durch eine bisher nicht verfügbare Übersicht über die Petitionsverfahren bei den nationalen Parlamenten sowie den nationalen Ombudsstellen in Europa.

Debates on Government E-petitions in Westminster Hall Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Procedure Committee,2013-04-22 In July 2012, the House agreed to allow debates on Government e-petitions to take place on Mondays in Westminster Hall, on a trial basis during the current session. Three debates have taken place during the session, with a fourth scheduled on the day of publication of this report (22 April 2013). The Government's e-petitions website continues to be popular, and a dedicated slot in Westminster Hall on Monday afternoon provides a clear end-point for the process. The Procedure Committee agrees with the Backbench Business Committee that the trial has been successful and recommends that the temporary changes to the Standing Orders be made permanent.

Debates on government e-petitions Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Procedure Committee,2012-01-19 Whilst the Government's initiative of e-petitions is welcome in principle, there have been some practical problems with its operation. In this report two areas which need urgent attention have been addressed, the time for debate and public understanding of the process.The Committee recommends that a dedicated time slot be created for debates on subjects that are raised by e-petitions and propose that this is an extra sitting in Westminster Hall between 4.30 and 7.30 pm on a Monday. This would only take place if the Backbench Business Committee had scheduled a debate on the subject of an e-petition. This change would be experimental and its effectiveness be reviewed after one year.Many of the problems experienced by the Backbench Business Committee and by petitioners have arisen from a failure on the part of the Government to adequately explain the process to petitioners. The Committee recommends that the information on the Government's website should be made clearer and more accurate. When a petition has been signed by 100,000 people, the lead petitioner should be advised to find an MP who is willing to apply to the Backbench Business Committee for time for debate

Die Petition Wolfgang Neufeind,2022-04-06 Fachbuch aus dem Jahr 2022 im Fachbereich Jura - Öffentliches Recht / Staatsrecht / Grundrechte, , Sprache: Deutsch, Abstract: Beginnend mit der Erklärung der Wortherkunft und der Beschreibung des Inbegriffs der Petitionseingabe umfasst die Darstellung die Punkte Petitionsgrundrecht, Petenten, Adressaten, Petitionsinhalt, Petitionsform, rechtliche Dimensionen des Petitionsrechts sowie Petitionsverfahren und Verfahrensabschluss. Ein Exkurs behandelt das Ombudswesen und das Institut der Bürgerbeauftragten. Das Petitionsaufkommen beim Deutschen Bundestag belegt, dass die Bürger das Instrument der Petition in erheblichem Maße für Individualinteressen nutzen – aber auch zum Zwecke der politischen Partizipation im Allgemeinen wahrnehmen.

Political Participation and E-petitioning Ross D. Cotton, 2011 Data was collected from the Scottish Parliament's E-petitioning website, which hosts all the E-petitions and details of who signed them, each E-petition's path through the Parliament, who sponsored the petition, and other important information. Since success of an E-petition is highly subjective due to the original petitioner's own desired goals, three case studies of E-petitions and a data analysis were utilized to evaluate the system. Results suggest that the Scottish Parliament's E-petition system has engaged Scots in the political process, given them a medium to participate in meaningful policy formulation, and produced tangible changes in policy through E-petitions.

Electronic Petitioning and Modernization of Petitioning Systems in Europe Ulrich Riehm, Knud Böhle, Ralf Lindner, 2014-03 In recent years, electronic petition systems have found widespread use. They ensure both the publication of petition texts and the collection of supporting signatures. Moreover, advanced systems enable online discussions concerning the respective petition. Parliaments and governments are making increasingly use of this instrument of political participation and protection of the citizens' interests vis-a-vis the executive power. At the turn of the millennium, the Scottish parliament was one of the pioneers with regard to parliamentary petition portals. The active participation of citizens in the entire petitioning process was one of the guiding principles of the Scottish e-petition system which attracted attention worldwide and has been taken up elsewhere. Since 2005, the Scottish model has been adopted and further developed by the German Bundestag. In many European parliaments, reform processes regarding the modernization of petitioning systems can be observed. On behalf of the German Parliament, the Office of Technology Assessment at the German Bundestag has examined the functional change of the parliamentary petition system in Germany in the course of the introduction of public electronic petitions and has shown a differentiated picture of the strengths and weaknesses of the currently applied system. The view of the German situation is complemented by a country study regarding the petitioning systems applied in Great-Britain including the Scottish one. The volume is completed by an overview of the petitions procedures provided by the European national parliaments and ombudsman institutions.

E-petitions Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Procedure Committee, 2009-05-08 In its 2008 report on e-petitions (HC 136, 1st report of session 2007-08, ISBN 9780215514479) the Committee recommended that the House of Commons should adopt a system of e-petitions to offer a simple, effective and transparent way for the public to tell the House and its members about what matters to them and to indicate the levels of support for their concerns. The Government initially issued a response accepting the recommendations, but a recent communication from the Government indicated a significant shift away from that position, raising concerns about the costs involved. This further report examines these concerns and calls on the Government to think again about this project.

In 1897-98, the Hui Hawai'i Aloha 'i'ina mounted a massive political drive, collecting more than 21,000 signatures for the Palapala Hoopii Kue Hoohuiaina, a petition against the annexation of the Kingdom of Hawai'i by the United States. Submitted to the U.S. Congress, the K'?' Petitions (as they are now commonly known) were successful in defeating the treaty of annexation. They fell into obscurity before re-entering the consciousness of the l?hui in 1998, when scholar Noenoe K. Silva found them at the National Archives in Washington, D.C.Today, the K'?' Petitions are as important to the l?hui as when they were originally signed. K'?' Petitions: A Mau Loa Aku N? features all of the petitions in brilliant full-color; compelling essays by Kanaka Maoli authors Jonathan Kay Kamakawiwo'ole Osorio, Jamaica Heolimeleikalani Osorio, N?lanī Minton, and Noenoe K. European E-Democracy in Practice Leonhard Hennen,Ira van Keulen,Iris Korthagen,Georg Aichholzer,Ralf Lindner,Rasmus Øjvind Nielsen,2019-11-06 This open access book explores how digital tools and social media technologies can contribute to better participation and involvement of EU citizens in European politics. By analyzing selected representative e-participation projects at the local, national and European governmental levels, it identifies the preconditions, best practices and shortcomings of e-participation practices in connection with EU decision-making procedures and institutions. The book features case studies on parliamentary monitoring, e-voting practices, and e-publics, and offers recommendations for improving the integration of e-democracy in European politics and governance. Accordingly, it will appeal to scholars as well as practitioners interested in identifying suitable e-participation tools for European institutions and thus helps to reduce the EU's current democratic deficit. This book is a continuation of the book "Electronic Democracy in Europe" published by Springer.
